Message to the School Management

Respected Sir / Madam,

Handwriting is one aspect of education that has been overlooked by curriculum designers, academicians, parents and students. Research, however, has proved that handwriting reflects the personality traits of individuals. A good handwriting is a lifelong investment for professional growth.

Cursive writing is an art that helps teach children muscle control and hand-eye coordination. Multiple researches show that bad writing leads to lower grades/marks and might have irreversible impact on the child's personality. The neurological process that directs thought, through fingers, into written symbols is a highly sophisticated one. Several academic studies have found that good handwriting skills at a young age can help children express their thoughts better a lifelong benefit. Children who don't learn correct technique find it harder to write by hand, so they void it. Schools that do teach handwriting often stop after fourth grade/class right after children learn cursive.

Our main intension in conducting this competition is to create awareness among students and the school management the importance of Handwriting. A handwriting skill is crucial for successful and satisfying education experience and is a lifelong learning skill.

I am confident that by joining hands and working together we will pave way for the bright future of the generation next.

Thank you,
With warm regards,
Stephen V
